

KING'S COLLEGE

WILKES-BARRE, PENNSYLVANIA

Education

Do you remember that one special teacher who made a difference in your education? Perhaps it was your first grade teacher who encouraged you to keep practicing your printing as you struggled to keep your letters even on the baseline? Or maybe it was your eighth grade English teacher that recognized your creative potential and encouraged you to develop your writing? Whatever your experience, we recognize the role that good teachers play in impacting young people's lives, and we can teach you how to make a difference in students' lives too.

Individualized Attention

At King's, education majors may choose to focus on numerous areas during their studies. Whether you are interested in teaching pre-school children or would prefer to teach high school students, King's has the faculty and resources to prepare you to teach either of these age groups.

"It's an exciting time to be part of the education department at King's College," explains Dr. Denise Reboli, chairperson of the education program. "We recently completed NCATE accreditation and re-organized our major program to respond to changes from the state department. We are housed in the newest building on campus, Gateway Corners. And each of the endeavors would not have been possible without the support of our greatest asset, our students."

Certification Areas

King's education program is approved by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and meets certification requirements.

The certification areas are:

- Pre-Kindergarten to grade 4
- Special Education
(Pre-Kindergarten to grade 8)
- Secondary Education (grades 7-12)
- Secondary Special Education

Real World Ready

Our teacher candidates begin preparation to teach very early in their years at King's. Each of our field experiences is embedded within a class so that teacher candidates have the opportunity to practice what they are learning in the classroom. Field experiences begin the first semester teacher candidates begin their education courses (usually second semester first year or first semester second year).
